

How to Add a Google Doc to the Brain

Hope Hospital · Bettroi — Second Brain

Follow these 3 steps and the Brain will read your document automatically. After that, you (and the team) can ask `@brain` questions about it in Slack.

The 3 steps

1. Open the doc → click the blue Share button (top-right).
2. Under General access, set it to “Anyone with the link” → Viewer.
 - Change “Restricted” to Anyone with the link
 - Set the role to Viewer — not Editor
 - (Viewer lets the Brain read it. Editor would let anyone with the link change it — don't.)
3. Click Copy link, then paste that link into the project's Slack channel or thread (any channel where `@brain` is a member).

The Brain ingests it within a few minutes. Done.

⚠ Do NOT share these

“Anyone with the link” means anyone who has the link can open it. Never share a doc that contains:

- Passwords, API keys, or logins
- Patient information (PHI)
- Bank, salary, or financial details

If a doc has secrets mixed in, make a clean copy without them and share that instead.

Quick tips

- Post the link in the right project's channel/thread — the Brain tags the doc to that project, so answers stay organised.

- Viewer is enough. You never need to give Editor access for the Brain.
- One link per doc is plenty — you don't need to re-paste it later; updates are picked up.

Questions? Ask `@brain` in Slack, or message Dr. Murali.